Software-defined networking (SDN) technology is an approach to cloud computing that facilitates network management and enables programmatically efficient network configuration in order to improve network performance and monitoring. SDN is meant to address the fact that the static architecture of traditional networks is decentralized and complex while current networks require more flexibility ...

Software-defined storage (SDS) is a marketing term for computer data storage software for policy-based provisioning and management of data storage independent of the underlying hardware. Software-defined storage typically includes a form of storage virtualization to separate the storage hardware from the software that manages it. The software enabling a software-defined storage environment may ...

Supporting end-to-end Quality of Service (QoS) in existing network architectures is an ongoing problem. Although researchers from both academia and industry have proposed many solutions to solve the QoS limitations of the current networking, many of them either failed or were not implemented.

GoBGP â€œ A Control Plane Evolving Software Networking. If I have talked to you over the past year or two about networking, odds are I have mentioned a project to you called GoBGP.If we have spoken a lot, you are probably sick of me talking to you about GoBGP There is a reason, itâ€™s because GoBGP is a missing link in networking that has been for a long time.
